

Hello. I want to introduce myself to you and let you know that I am immediately available to work with your growing company

I am a dynamic and results-driven Manager of Learning and Events with a strong background in strategic program development and over 20 years of experience in coordinating high-impact training and corporate events. I display an exceptional ability for optimizing learning experiences by tailoring training sessions to meet diverse audience needs and maximize engagement. Also adept at managing end-to-end event logistics and designing curriculum by leveraging expertise in instructional design and LMS administration to enhance learning outcomes. I am looking to continue my career with a forward-thinking organization and obtain a Learning and Development Manager position that will leverage my program management and curriculum development skills to create transformative learning initiatives that drive both employee growth and organizational success.

My resume is attached.

Thank you

Mike Markham
